

Whole Person Process Facilitation

Session 2 of the Genuine Contact™ Program

October 28-30, 2008

You have the option to register for this workshop in English or French

Join us for this 3-day experiential workshop and learn how to use Whole Person Process Facilitation and explore how this powerful technique can be used as a platform for highly successful meetings and developing exceptional leaders within your organization. You will learn how to engage your team, your employees, and your community in a way that allows for them to discover their passion and take ownership of what matters most to them in your organization.

Whole Person Process Facilitation (WPPF) creates meetings that produce results by tapping into the creativity and collective genius of the participants in the meeting. By design, the meetings themselves serve to activate each individual's personal life purpose and to invite the alignment of personal Purpose with group Purpose, and to proceed smoothly into individual and collective action. WPPF works well with groups from 6 to 150 people and from 3 hours in length to several days.

WPPF accesses the greatest potential of the individual participants involved and of the group as a whole, thereby achieving maximum learning and results. WPPF achieves these outcomes by using a structure and exercises that engage the whole brain: the creative, intuitive, subjective 'right brain' as well as the analytic, logical, objective 'left brain'; and engage the whole person - the mind, body, heart and spirit.

In addition to capacity building, the workshop provides the opportunity to:

- Slow down and honour the need for replenishment with good company in a beautiful setting.
- Reflect on and grow your leadership capacity by making genuine contact with yourself.
- Expand your network and tap into the wisdom and experience of all workshop participants.
